

The four categories of inflammatory response to infection are associated with a significant increase in mortality.²